'Summer-ize' New Oil Depot Service

Magnolia Company Providing Hot Weather Program for Cars

DALLAS, Texas—Anticipating the early arrival of hot weather, 12,000 service stations and dealers of the Magnolia Petroleum company are inaugurating "Summer-ize" service for motorists, E. P. Angus, vice president and manager of sales, revealed today. "Summer-ize," a coined word originated by Magnolia, describes a unique service designed to prepare automobiles for economical and care-free operation under the higher temperatures of summer.

"Motor vehicle manufacturers have long realized the need for a 'spring housecleaning' for the car and a change in the grade of lubricants with each change in the season," Mr. Angus said. "But it remained for Magnolia to systematize this essential service and to popularize it under the name of 'Summer-ize.' This spring Magnolia 'Summer-ize' service is in greater demand than ever before as increasing numbers of car ofners learn that it is cheaper to protect autos against hot meather trouble than to pay expensive repair bills later.

"Seven vital points are covered in the Magnolia 'Summer-ize' operation which is performed by trained men who work from charts showing the correct grade of Mobiloil or Mobilgrease for each part of each make and model of passenger car, and the correct grade for the climatic condition under which the car is to be operated," Mr. Angus said. "This combined service also provides a complete checkup of such important units as the radiator, battery, tires, steering gear and other safety elements."

Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn

ESTIMATES on the damage in the East Arkansas flood area range all the way from 25,000 to 100,000 acres of cotton, which, owing to the lateness of the season, may not be replanted with full success. Added to the unusually bad weather conditions this spring, it looks as though a reduced and late crop would contribute to better prices next fall.

On the other hand, cotton, like the newspaper and mercantile business, has two critical points—the planting period of early spring and the great growing month of August.

Stores put on year-end sales in January-February, and mid-summer sales in July-August, evidence that business hangs in the balance. Just so with cotton.

The spring period looks upward—but we never really know until after August.

Here is a note to the Hope district office of the highway department. The Caney creek bridge on No. 67 3½ miles west of town is so dangerous that it ought to be repaired at once, or partly barricaded by day and guarded with lanterns at night, to caution tourists.

Hope folks know how the pavement has sunk away from the bridge, but out of these days unless something is done a tourist is going to have a bad accident.

The state leveled off the bridge-approach with asphalt filler some time back; but the pavement has settled again, creating a dangerous bump likely to throw a fast-moving car off the road.

Walter Sorrells, Jr., charges in the Pine Bluff Commercial that there is a conspiracy behind the secret cashing of $35,000 of old highway warrants last week.

Sorrells recalls that two classified advertisements offering cash for old warrants were placed in the Pine Bluff paper, May 9 and May 12—the last one being "urgent." Attorney General Norwood issued his secret opinion authorizing cashing of the warrants just five days later, May 17.

"This thing should not be permitted to rest in secrecy," Sorrells says. "The original holders of these warrants, many of them uninformed laborers, have been robbed. Even to many months. If any one is permitted to receive dollar for dollar on the warrants, then it should be the original holders."

x x x

This is interesting.

Interesting, also, was last Monday's Associated Press dispatch to The Star telling of Comptroller Smith's investigation. Treasurer Leonard, who paid the warrants on Norwood's say-so, denied any personal interest in them, and denied attending a secret meeting in a Little Rock lawyer's office where a conspiracy was alleged to have been hatched.

This writer fought Attorney General Norwood so hard after the highway scandals with which he was intimately connected that we cannot pass fair comment on the present matter.

But it is darkly significant that practically every scandal in the state house for the last three administrations has turned up the attorney general in a mysterious light.

Comptroller Smith should give the capitol crew another shakedown.

Maybe this time the truth will turn up.

Act 280 May Be Referred in July Rather Than 1934

Newly-Discovered Rule Would Utilize Special Election

PRODUCES SURPRISE

Vote July 18th a Year and Half Earlier Than Expected

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—The suggestion that Governor Futrell and the state board of election commissioners include on the July 18 special election ballot the question of sustaining or repealing two 1933 legislative acts for which referendum petitions are being circulated, is receiving study in some quarters.

The two measures referred or sought to be referred include Act 280, extending to four years the time for redemption of property sold for taxes, and the act abolishing the elective state board of education and substituting an appointive board.

Petitions for referring Act 280 already have been filed with the secretary of state, and various groups in charge of circulating petitions for a referendum on the education board act say enough signatures will be obtained before June 9 to insure it being referred.

Regular Election

Unless the two acts are included on the July 18 special election ballot, the acts would be held in abeyance until the voters made their choices at the 1934 general election.

The initiative and referendum amendment to the constitution provides that any measure may be referred to the people at special elections.

If 15 per cent of the voters so petition, the amendment recites that such special elections shall be called.

Since only 6 per cent of the number of votes cast for governor at the preceding general election are needed as signatures of petitions to insure a measure being referred, enough for a relatively easily referred, but to obtain 15 per cent of the votes required on petitions to require the governor to call a special election is another matter, and a difficult it probably will not be attempted.

May Be Included

But when the 6 per cent amount is obtained to insure a measure being referred, the amendment allows it to be included at a special election.

A special election to refer a measure has never been held in Arkansas under the initiative and referendum amendment. It has been the custom to refer acts only at the regular general elections.

Because of this custom, many people have grown to believe that a referred measure may only be voted upon at the regular general elections. When the provisions of the amendment were called to the attention of a group of attorneys, many expressed surprise and said they had previously overlooked it.

The apparent confusion, attorneys pointed out, probably arose because of the provision that initiated acts may be submitted only at the regular general elections, and not at special elections.

The last act referred to the people—the Hall income tax act of 1929—was sustained in 1930.

St. Francis Flood Waters Falling

Estimate of Damaged Area Ranges From 25,000 to 100,000 Acres

MONETTE, Ark.—(AP)—Many inhabitants of the fertile east bottoms of Craighead county held to their convention Wednesday that the flood waters are growing thrush breaks in the levees of the St. Francis river will never more than 100,000 acres—and government engineers estimated that only slightly more than 25,000 will be inundated.

Government officials estimate the damage at $5 million dollars, although some observers place the loss at 1 million.

Practically all cotton is ruined, but some planters plan to replant at once. The flood waters were falling Wednesday.

Magnolia Council "Legalizes" Beer

3.2 Brew Is Licensed as a Non-Intoxicating Drink

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—As far as the city administration was concerned, sale of 3.2 beer was legal Tuesday in Magnolia, the city council having passed an ordinance Monday night declaring the brew non-intoxicating and providing a yearly license fee of $30 for those who wished to sell it.

The ordinance was presented with Aldermen L. A. Longino, R. S. Warstock, Jr., and C. M. Crumpler and Mayor O. W. Collins voting aye, and Aldermen F. K. Couch, C. R. Green and H. F. Greer voting nay.

The ordinance further provided that the law should be in effect and in full force after its passage and publication.

A long debate over the constitutionality of the ordinance preceded the council's final affirmative action.

Morgan Objects to Regulation on Public Bank Basis

Private Banking Entirely Different, Financier Tells Probers

PUBLISH LOAN LIST

Dawes, Whitney, Mitchell, Norman Davis Among Borrowers

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Objection by J. P. Morgan to the placing of his giant private banking firm under the same examinations now required of commercial banks was recorded by him Wednesday in a light-hearted manner before the senate investigating committee.

He gave as his reason:

"Our relations with our clients are much more confidential than the relations between a commercial bank and its customer must be."

The committee swung into this phase after making public a list of loans by the Morgan firm, which included former Vice-President Dawes; Ambassador Norman H. Davis; Charles E. Mitchell, former president of the National City bank now on trial on charges of tax evasion; and other prominent figures.

As to the Mitchell loan, which the recipient said now stands under-collateralized, Morgan revealed that his firm even takes new partners without requiring them to furnish capital.

Losses Written Off

Somebody, at some time in the testimony before the senate committee late Tuesday, was very wise in the way new partners were taken into the Morgan firm during the depression years, when the company's securities were going down and down.

A Parker Gilbert, former agent of German reparations and the man for the latest Morgan partner, enabled the firm, for example to write off a loss of more than $21,000,000 in the securities held by the partners.

It was on January 2, 1931, that Mr. Gilbert came into the firm. His joining constituted dissolution of the old partnership and formation of a new one. That meant revaluing securities that had fallen $21,000,000 since the middle of 1930. And under the law as it then existed, that meant that the loss could be carried over into 1932 and 1933 and deducted from any profits in those years.

Had Mr. Gilbert joined two days earlier, the loss could have been deducted only in 1931 and 1932.

With Mr. Morgan and Attorney John W. Davis at the hearing Tuesday were the Morgan partners, Thomas W. Lamont, George Whitney, brother of Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and Russell C. Leffingwell.

Also with them, too, was Leonard Keyes.

Mr. Keyes," explained Mr. Morgan, "is a sort of general office manager and a most confidential clerk."

This he pronounced it "clark" British fashion.

Offers Statement

Mr. Morgan began with a prepared statement. He wanted to be helpful, he told the committee. He pointed out that incorporated banks receive certain governmental help and must submit to certain governmental regulations. Private bankers, he declared, receive no such help, but enjoy greater freedom.

His firm, he maintained, had always done "a first class business in a first class way." It had prided itself not merely in obeying the law but had always lived up to the spirit of the law.

Mr. Pecora started in just as though he had never heard of J. P. Morgan. He found where he lived and what he did and where the famous office was located at 23 Wall Street.

Profits and Losses

Then the testimony got back to the income tax returns.

Mr. Pecora asked if he had paid an income tax for 1932, and Mr. Morgan replied:

"No, I might remind you, Mr. Pecora, that if I had a substantial interest in a commercial bank and a commercial bank did not...

Repeal Advocate Raps Gangsters and Bishops

Woman Leader Asks Repeal of 18th Amendment to End Graft and Waste

BY MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN
(National Chairman, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.)
Written Exclusively for NEA Service.

NEW YORK — In these days when the president and his administration are waging a battle against depression on national and international fronts, it is likely to be forgotten that every voter in the United States has an opportunity to help the economic recovery within the next three months, by voting to eliminate the stupendous waste of money squandered in an endeavor to enforce the obnoxious national prohibition law.

During the last four years the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform has made its fight for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment because of the moral depression resulting from the conditions existing under Prohibition. But, today, conditions make repeal equally important economically and morally.

In order to ratify repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, thirty-six states must elect, to their respective state conventions, delegates who favor repeal. Thirty-eight legislatures have already passed necessary legislation setting up the machinery for the election of delegates to such conventions.

A grave danger is over-optimism on the part of Republicans. Therefore, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform is conducting a campaign to endeavor to arouse the voters in the various states to the importance of their giving more than lip service to the cause of repeal, by working and voting to elect wet delegates.

5 States Ratify

Five states—Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyoming and New Jersey—have already ratified, but this organization will continue its work until thirty-six states have ratified.

We will continue to do educational work. We will continue to study the liquor control systems of other countries in order that we may be well informed, when our respective states ratify, as to the systems which have been effective, so that we may take an intelligent part in forming a liquor control system for our respective states.

Prior to each state election, we will use every legitimate means, such as meetings, radio addresses, publicity and organizers to stimulate the repeal sentiment in that state.

For four years we have endeavored to bring before the public the evils resulting from the prohibition law. Today, we are faced with not only the same evils, but also wit hthe fact that this insane experiment has been a financial drain upon the Federal Treasury, as well as upon the individual taxpayers.

The actual cost of endeavoring to enforce this unenforceable law, has been as high as $49,000,000 a year. The conservatively estimated loss in revenue has been approximately $1,600,000,000 annually.

We might hesitate to talk about the cost of prohibition and the loss in revenue to the Government, had the American people stopped drinking under this law, but everyone knows that drinking instead of being eliminated, as was promised by the "drys," has steadily increased.

People Must Consent

Today, the Federal Government is powerless to abolish this law without the consent of the people. The congress and the majority of state legislatures have done their part. We only have no one to blame but ourselves if this shameful, wasteful and disastrous law is not eliminated from our constitution forever.

I believe that the resolution calling for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will be ratified within the next 16 months.

I believe the great majority of the people of this country want repeal. They want to see the liquor traffic controlled and taxed. They want to be rid of bootleggers, speakeasies, gangsters and racketeers. They want to be rid of hypocritical politicians. They want to be rid of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and "Other People's Morals." They want to be rid of the domination of the Anti-Saloon League. They want to be rid of the Al Capones and Bishop Cannons. They want to be rid of graft, corruption and lawlessness, which has followed in the wake of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Repeal Carries in New York 11 to 1

Sixth State to Ratify--Wet Majority in New York City 41 to 1

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—With New York City voting approximately 41 to 1 for repeal, the Empire State Wednesday lined up with the five other states which, have already approved the repeal of the 18th amendment.

The repeal vote throughout the state in Tuesday's ratification referendum was approximately 11 to 1.

Fifty-two of the 57 upstate counties and 5 counties of New York City reported an incomplete total of 1,724,000 for repeal, and 153,000 against.

The sixth state to ratify repeal, New York has followed these: Michigan, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Press for Action

WASHINGTON—(AP)—In a move which would bring the while weight of the administration behind the repeal movement, Postmaster General Farley announced Tuesday night that he would send a letter to all campaign workers urging them to work for removal of the 18th amendment from the constitution.

The postmaster general is chairman of the Democratic national committee and is directly charged with the campaign to place President Roosevelt in the White House.

Because of his nearness to the president and his position as head of the party, many felt that from him would place the matter squarely before the campaign workers as an administration proposal.

The party pledged itself to repeal the 18th amendment in the platform on which the convention at Chicago that nominated President Roosevelt.

In his letter, Farley is expected to point to the vote of the various states that already have recorded themselves for repeal, and to point out that the actual cost of endeavoring to enforce the provisions of the bridge will not be given free by Pike county. Hempstead county wanted the bridge located at Bingen, and near Blevins, Pike county wanted it located still farther south.

Either of these locations would be outside of Nevada county and would not benefit the Prescott trade territory to any great extent, hence the refusal of the Nevada county delegation to agree to either of the plans.

The project has been abandoned temporarily and will be taken up later.

Futrell Demands Farm Act Ruling

Special Session, If Necessary, But After Prohi Referendum

LITTLE ROCK—Governor Futrell, Monday sent a letter to Henry Morgenthau, federal farm administrator, asking for an official ruling as to whether the so-called anti-deficiency judgment act passed by the 1933 legislature will prevent Arkansas farm and home owners from receiving loans from federal agencies under relief legislation passed by Congress.

Constitutionality of the act will be decided by the Arkansas Supreme court within a few weeks.

The governor wrote that he would call a special session of the legislature, if necessary, to repeal the statute but said he did not want to act until after the special prohibition repeal referendum election scheduled for July 18.

Court Victory for Comptroller Ends Cashing Warrants

Treasurer Leonard Held Responsible for Cashing $52,000 Worth

NORWOOD IS SHAKY

Attorney General's Stand Uncertain Where to Go Now

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Overruling a demurrer by State Treasurer Roy Leonard to a complaint by State Comptroller Griffin Smith, who had obtained a temporary order restraining the treasurer from further cashing of state highway warrants under $100 each, Chancellor Frank H. Dodge held Wednesday that all claims for highway indebtedness not evidenced by bonds were subject to review by the state bond refunding board before payment by the treasurer.

The chancellor gave Attorney General Hal Norwood, representing Treasurer Leonard, until next Monday to file an answer to the original complaint which had been made by Comptroller Smith as a taxpayer.

The chancellor declared that the treasurer in paying out approximately $52,000 on old highway warrants before the restraining order was issued had acted at his peril.

The effect of the chancellor's ruling was to uphold Comptroller Smith's contention that the treasurer could not, on his authority, under Act 167 of 1933, pay out cash on warrants before they had been examined by the comptroller.

The attorney general's staff has not decided shortly after the ruling whether to file an answer and proceed with the trial of the case, or go to the supreme court from the overruling of their demurrer.

Fail to Agree on Location of Bridge

Nevada, Pike and Hempstead Deadlocked Over Free Project

PRESCOTT, Ark.—At a meeting here the county judges of Nevada, Pike and Hempstead counties and their road committees held at the Ben Hall Plantation farm Tuesday, no decision was reached as to the location o fa bridge and approaches across the Little Missouri river connecting Nevada and Hempstead with Pike county.

The judges and their committees failed to reach any agreement as to the location of the bridge which is to be given free by Pike county. Hempstead county wanted the bridge located at Bingen, and near Blevins, Pike county wanted it located still farther south.

Either of these locations would be outside of Nevada county and would not benefit the Prescott trade territory to any great extent, hence the refusal of the Nevada county delegation to agree to either of the plans.

The project has been abandoned temporarily and will be taken up later.

Church of Christ Revival Growing

Large Increase in Attendance Noted There Tuesday Night

A marked increase in attendance was shown Tuesday night at the Church of Christ where Evangelist Lee P. Mansfield is conducting a revival meeting.

Additional electric fans will be in motion Wednesday night when the evangelist brings a message on the subject of "Hell."

He preached Tuesday night on "The Glorious Church." The word church is the most misused word in the Bible. It never should be used with a capital.

"When you become a christian you are a member of the Lord's church. You don't have to join anything else to get to heaven. You do not join the Lord's church—you are born in it. Any church you can join, you had better stay out. It is not the one the Lord built."

"Jesus gave himself for the church. He purchased it with His own blood. He did not buy the devil and all his imps. He bought the church with His blood. You might as well ask me which Christ I believe in as to ask me which church I belong to. There is one church, one God, one Holy Spirit, one faith and one Christ."

Mooney Freed on an Old Indictment

Judge Instructs Jury to Return Verdict of Acquittal

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. —(AP)—Superior Judge Ward instructed a jury of six men and six women Wednesday to acquit Mooney on the old indictment for which he had been brought to trial in an effort to regain his liberty.

Sent to San Quentin prison after the Preparedness day bombing which killed 10 persons in 1916, Mooney never had been tried on this particular indictment.

Fights for Liberty

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—(AP)—Tom Mooney's long hoped-for trial on an old indictment in connection with the bombing of the 1916 Preparedness Day parade, got under way Tuesday with the day devoted to an unsuccessful attempt to get a jury from the first panel of 45 veniremen.

The prosecution accepted jurors as they came and intended to present no evidence. The proceedings moved briskly along in the court of Superior Judge Louis H. Ward.

Mooney, florid and quiet, sat with his attorneys, headed by the veteran Frank P. Walsh. Among the spectators was the aged mother, Mary Mooney, and Mooney's wife, Rena.

Mooney had been brought to the county jail here a few days ago from San Quentin, where he has been serving a life sentence for conviction at his first trial for bombing the 1916 parade, which resulted in a loss of 10 lives.

When adjournment was taken for the day 35 of the 45 talesmen in the panel had been excused either for cause or by peremptory challenge. Of the 11 remaining in the jury box, seven were women. A new panel was ordered for Wednesday.

SYNOPSIS HERE'S TODAY

MONNIE CURRIE is going about with MISS ANSTICE CLEVERLY, the great actress, but Cleverly is to forget DAN CLAREDON, Monnie's fiancé, and help him to marry wealthy SANDRA. Monnie, who is in love with Dan, agrees to be Monnie's friend, but Sandra is jealous. Dan tells Monnie he loves her, and Monnie tells Dan she has received a cool letter from Sandra telling him to go to Europe as her husband. Monnie does not know that Dan and Sandra have had a quarrel and that Dan is going to Europe after selling his and Monnie's car. Monnie is at a party. A handsome stranger offers them a ride in the rain.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

AS Miss Anstice said afterward, Arthur Mackenzie, who was the tall man of the theater advertising, was "such a perfect gentleman." Miss Anstice had been a bit disturbed after she and Monnie had arrived at the hotel to realize they had driven across town "with a perfect stranger" and such terrible things happened in New York! But it had been the sun and the worry of getting her plum-colored wrap spotted which had plunged Miss Anstice into this darling.

And, after all, nothing had happened. Mr. Mackenzie, quietly assured, had told the chauffeur to drop them at the Splendidit and then to him on to a party. He sounded to Monnie like "The Firefly." She had read only that one thing in the newspaper of a new night club of that name.

Cleverly, dotty Mr. Mackenzie had allotted from Miss Anstice the fact they were sailing on the morrow. He had smilingly asked them a pleasant voyage. Monnie, sitting demurely in one corner of the boat, her pad caught a flash in the man's dark eyes when Miss Anstice mentioned the name of the boat. Their first trip! But how delightful! He wished he might have the—the pleasure of showing Miss Corey and Miss Currie his favorite haunts in Paris. They would love Paris, he said, in a quiet, assured voice pitched a second in bronze and distinction.

The car slid under the dripping awning of the Splendidit and Mr. Mackenzie forestalled the action of the chauffeur in helping the ladies to alight. A tall, imposing figure in his gleaming black and white, he stood there. But it had been a real pleasure, he was assuring them. He had been charmed. He gave Monica's slim gloved hand a quick pressure about this assured man of the world.

"He's the sort who gets what he wants, always," thought the girl shrewdly. It must be wonderful to go about with a man like that. He patted Monnie's hand as if you were a valuable piece of porcelain.

FOR the first time since her debut, Monnie felt herself neglected. There, watching her with an expression of faint amusement in his heavy-lidded eyes, was her good Samaritan of the night before, Arthur Mackenzie.

"Oh, how do you do! You're seeing some one off?"

He shook his head, enjoying her amazement. "No, I'm sailing. Discovered I had some important business in Spain and thought I might as well make this boat. Such a lovely favorite."

The girl in the silver fox stood their way and Mackenzie put it on her head. Her face included Monica, and she said something in a low tone to her companions. There was a

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Coffers of 33 state treasurers contain an additional $4,500,000 collected in taxes since beer was legalized April 7.

This includes complete figures for only three states. Seventeen states made incomplete returns. Seven others gave no figures on the amount from beer taxes. The other 15 states do not yet permit sale of beer.

The federal government collected $6,139,887 in beer revenue during the 23 days of April that the brew was legally flowing. $4,500,000 collected by the states was in addition and brought the total beer taxes to $13,-639,670. To this figure must be added unestimated millions levied by cities and municipalities in license fees on distributors and retailers.

The federal taxes of $5 a barrel netted $3,909,0321 licenses $868,811 and wine $834.

Beer is sold legally in 33 states and the District of Columbia. Under the laws of Maine it becomes legal June 30 and in Nebraska on August 15.

Utah, Minnesota, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Maryland, Colorado, Wyoming and Minnesota, have not levied state taxes on beer. In Arizona the state tax does not go into effect until June 14. The heaviest tax on beer is levied in South Carolina where in addition to the $5 federal tax the state adds $4.85 a barrel or 5 cents a gallon. Or 15 ounce bottles the tax is two cents.

North carolina fixed a tax rate of $3.00 a barrel; Florida of $1.86.

Except for the six states levying no tax, Kentucky with 10 cents a barrel had the lowest rate. The average state excise rate was between $1.00 and $1.25 a barrel.

Like the gold stillness of an afterglow, The Past gleams radiant . . . "They were better days,
With gentleness and grace of long ago, Like children's gladness and its innocent ways.
So grieve we for the haunting times of yore,
While life seemed lovelier and the world more warm,
Thinking that Beauty's sun will shine no more.
Since now we face the darkness and the storm,
Yet all the joy that earth has ever known
Is with us now to make existence sweet;
The nightingale of Keats has never flown,
And Shelley's lark still sings above the wheat
When Eve in Eden wore it in her hair—

est in the profits of the concern I also have a substantial interest in the issues. Which might account for some of the troubles."

There followed a long debate over the wisdom allowing purchase of a private banking firm to all of the members of directors of banks and corporations, Mr. Morgan insisting that it was an essential and ethical policy, Mr. Glass contending that no such office could serve two masters.

Asks Lists of Loans

Mr. Pecora asked for a list of loans by Morgan & Co to officers and directors of incorporated banks. That brought Mr. Davis to his feet. He had given the list to Mr. Pecora, he said. Morgan and Company had no objection to its publication but as bankers they owed their clients a debt of confidence and it must be the responsibility of the committee to decide.

The arguments waxed hot at times between Senator Glass and Mr. Pecora, the former contending the committee had no right to bring out private loans, the latter asserting that the last words threw light on the relationship between Morgan and Company and commercial banking interests.

Mr. Morgan admitted that some of the loans were overdue and unpaid, but others were collateralized. It appeared that there were other lists, such as one of individual depositors, which Mr. Pecora had demanded and to the publication of which Mr. Davis objected.

Mr. Davis repeated his objections. Mr. Pecora stood back strongly.

"This committee has heard frequently," said Mr. Pecora, "and has read frequently the charge and the statement or the allegation that a tremendous power is exercised by the firm of J. P. Morgan and of finance but over the industrial field in this country by the Morgan banks. That charge has been made upon the floor of both houses of this Congress. The information I have asked for and which, unless the committee prevents me, I have every purpose to put of these hearings, is information which in my humble opinion tends to disclose the existence of any such power and the channels through which the power is exercised and the reasons for it."

Keyes Takes Stand

For the first time Mr. Morgan was excused from the stand and Mr. Keyes placed upon it, there to explain about the $21,000,000 loan. He admitted he had heard that Mr. Gilbert was to be a member of the firm sometime before January 2, 1931, but no questioning by Mr. Pecora could shake his assertion that the firm had a right to evaluate its securities holdings upon the remorning of the partnership instead of the end of the calender year.

Surprises Wall Street

NEW YORK.—The condition statement of J. P. Morgan & Co. published today in connection with the Senate inquiry, occasioned surprise in and out of Wall Street community. It showed that the "hours on the edrner" were very much less in commercial loans than had popularly been supposed and that it, like every one else, suffered severe losses during the past three years.

The firm has no stated capital but carries its interest "net worth" representing the money that the partners have in the business after all losses and liabilities and expenses paid. All investments are carried at market and provision for possible losses on outstanding loans is made by writing down the "net worth" as carried on the balance sheet.

This net worth amounted to $118-604,184 at the end of 1929. By the close of last year, however, it had been reduced to $53,134,071, indicating losses of $65,-10.107 in the three years or over 55 per cent.

The firm's holdings of common stocks at the end of last year were only $15,-857,028, contrasted with investments of $254,580,150 in the United States government bonds, $33,857,666 in cash or on deposit in other banks and $7,325,-000 in call loans.

The total of $340,047,102 of deposits reported was slightly smaller than had been generally expected as was the figure of total resources, $404,706,005. The statement indicated a severe drop in deposits between January 2, 1931, when $503,899,015 was reported and January 2, 1932, when $319,403,849 was shown. This interpreted in financial circles as reflecting withdrawal during that period of the deposits of foreign governments, particularly governments of France, Great Britain and Belgium which occurred prior to and for many months after suspension of the gold standard by England.

Inflation Begins With Bond Buying

Secretary Woodin Thinks 3-Billion Limit Is Unnecessary

WASHINGTON—The launching of the Roosevelt inflation program, relied upon to boost prices and wages, and revive business generally, was officially announced late Tuesday by Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin.

But it is credit inflation, not currency inflation, that is being undertaken as the first, if not the only inflationary device that will be resorted to.

Secretary Woodin said the credit inflation program will be formed when the Federal Reserve banks began purchasing in the open market 25 millions worth of government securities. This is also complied with the Thomas inflation rider to the farm relief bill, which provides for such open market purchases of government obligations by the Federal Reserve banks, and, as an alternative, the issue of greenbacks.

The first move on the part of the Federal Reserve banks under the Thomas act," said Mr. Woodin in his statement announcing the inflation, "will be limited to purchases of obligations of the government.

"The limit placed by that amendment is $3 billions. We hope it will not be necessary to purchase all or anything approaching that amount."

The secretary made the announcement as he emerged from the meeting of the cabinet. Asked the reason for inaugurating inflation at this particular time, Mr. Woodin replied:

"To infect something into the market; to keep things moving along."

Arkansas to Help In Forestry Work

State Appoints Forester, Plans Camps on Private Timberland

LITTLE ROCK—The state Forestry Commission, at a meeting at the governor's reception room Tuesday, made preliminary plans to launch a reforestation and fire protection program in co-operation with federal agencies and named Charles A. Gillett forester for the state Agricultural Extension Service, as state forester.

Mr. Gillett, who has served as extension forester about three years, will continue in that capacity for the present, dividing his time between the extension work and supervision of the state forestry program. He is a graduate of Arkansas University and has had several years' experience in forestry work.

The commission authorized Mr. Gillett to obtain contracts with private landowners in areas where it is proposed to establish forestry camps whereby the owners will agree to pay two cents an acre for certain fire protection work. The fund will be matched with federal funds under the Clark-McNary act and will guarantee reforestation of fire protection work after special work has been completed by C. C. C. workers.

WE GIVE EAGLE TRADING STAMPS
HOPE — PRESCOTT — NASHVILLE

IN NEW YORK

BY PAUL HARRISON

NEW YORK.—The Union Club has picked up its fat leather chair and its memories of the New York of 1870, and moving to a new $3,000,000 home on Park Avenue.

Colonels and Commodores, paunchy masters of finance, bristly-mustached diplomats—gentlemen all, scions of centuries-old lines of blue-bloods. They're deserting, with a sigh, the gloomy, high-vaulted Italian palazzo where for 50 years they have dined, and talked, and lounged before the broad windows on Fifth Avenue and Fifty-first Street. And now, for the fifth time in the club's history in 70 years, its members must accustom themselves to new and modern grandeur, and a new view.

The Union is the oldest social club in America, as well as the most socially exclusive. In the old days some of New York's first families were enrolled on its long waiting list, which often contained a thousand names, as soon as they were born. Lately, though, the waiting list has dwindled, but there has been no tonal lowering of its membership. On the roster are names like J. Pierpont Morgan, Ogden L. Mills, Clarence H. Mackay, Nicholas Murray Butler, William H. Woodin. Members of old families like the Cabots, Vanderbilts, Iselins and Biddles are elected as a matter of course. The club's secretary, Charles K. Beekman owns the Social Register.

For Men Only

Sternly masculine, the Union Club has never had a ladies' day. In fact, the only woman ever admitted to its cloistered halls were the widow of ex-presidents, escorted there to view their husband's portraits. Gambling games are frowned upon, although members generally find something on which to place bets—such as the number of raindrops that will pass a window during a given time, or the number of kittens that will be born to the basement cat.

Contrary to conjecture, mere membership is not expensive. Initiation fees are $300; annual dues $200. Cigars and refreshments are sold at wholesale prices, and there is no tipping of employees. The latter, however, divide a subscribed Christmas fund which usually runs between $12,000 and $15,500. Dinners in the club's private dining rooms are likely to be expensive. Union Club terrapin, famed for more than half a century among epicures, costs $2.50 a portion.

Unhappy Memories

Not always has the Union Club pursued its placid way. Dissention has disturbed its studied calm. Tradition has it that the Brook Club was founded by two Union members who were expelled for putting a poached egg on the bald dome of a napping brother.

In 1882 Count Joseph Loubat called Joseph H. Choate a liar during a heated argument. Expelled forthwith, Count Loubat went to court with an array of bitterly eloquent legal talent that won him reinstatement. It was a humiliating precedent that has made explsion a difficult process ever since.

Across the street at St. Patrick's Cathedral, a throng of Irish one day were attending a service for a hero martyred in the Free State fight. Emerging from the church they saw the British flag honoring a famed English visitor, flying from the Union Club. They saw it, and charged. Bricks and stones shattered every downstairs window in the club. The mob forced its way into the lower lounges, there engaged in combat with members. The flag wasn't pulled down, either. But ever since then waggish clubmen have been fond of saying that the Union was "just a stone's throw from the cathedral."

Give your hands something besides new gloves this summer.

Are your hands beautiful? They can be. That is, if you'll take a little time each day to give them the attention they deserve.

If you have hands with dry skin you cannot hope for real beauty until this fault has been corrected. There are many excellent hand creams and lotions on the market today and they correct this dry condition. You should have one jar of oily cream to use at night. When you are ready for bed give your hands a vigorous massage with the cream, draw on soft, clean cotton gloves and allow the cream to penetrate to the pores of your skin all night long.

But the right cream is not enough. Get yourself a bottle of lotion which is considered to help your hands to retain their natural oils. This lotion should be used after you have thoroughly dried your hands each time you wash them.

By all means don't allow your hands to perspire. Nothing is worse than to shake hands with a person who offers you a wet, cold palm. A solution of alum which can be purchased at a drug store may cure the condition. The deodorants you use under your arms are also recommended for palms which perspire.

Next—Home-Made Lotions.

Eclectiat claims people in the city are more intelligent than those in the country. Must be true. A million of them have moved to the country in the last three years.

Maybe we don't understand the artistic point of view, but it looks to us like this: A man builds a $100,000,000 building and pays an artist $25,000 to persuade him to exercise his artistic right to paint anything he pleases in the $100,000,000 building.

SYNOPSIS HERE'S TODAY

MONNIE CURRIE is going about with MISS ANSTICE CLEVERLY, the great actress, but Cleverly is to forget DAN CLAREDON, Monnie's fiancé, and help him to marry wealthy SANDRA. Monnie, who is in love with Dan, agrees to be Monnie's friend, but Sandra is jealous. Dan tells Monnie he loves her, and Monnie tells Dan she has received a cool letter from Sandra telling him to go to Europe as her husband. Monnie does not know that Dan and Sandra have had a quarrel and that Dan is going to Europe after selling his and Monnie's car. Monnie is at a party. A handsome stranger offers them a ride in the rain.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

AS Miss Anstice said afterward, Arthur Mackenzie, who was the tall man of the theater advertising, was "such a perfect gentleman." Miss Anstice had been a bit disturbed after she and Monnie had arrived at the hotel to realize they had driven across town "with a perfect stranger" and such terrible things happened in New York! But it had been the sun and the worry of getting her plum-colored wrap spotted which had plunged Miss Anstice into this darling.

And, after all, nothing had happened. Mr. Mackenzie, quietly assured, had told the chauffeur to drop them at the Splendidit and then to him on to a party. He sounded to Monnie like "The Firefly." She had read only that one thing in the newspaper of a new night club of that name.

Cleverly, dotty Mr. Mackenzie had allotted from Miss Anstice the fact they were sailing on the morrow. He had smilingly asked them a pleasant voyage. Monnie, sitting demurely in one corner of the boat, her pad caught a flash in the man's dark eyes when Miss Anstice mentioned the name of the boat. Their first trip! But how delightful! He wished he might have the—the pleasure of showing Miss Corey and Miss Currie his favorite haunts in Paris. They would love Paris, he said, in a quiet, assured voice pitched a second in bronze and distinction.

The car slid under the dripping awning of the Splendidit and Mr. Mackenzie forestalled the action of the chauffeur in helping the ladies to alight. A tall, imposing figure in his gleaming black and white, he stood there. But it had been a real pleasure, he was assuring them. He had been charmed. He gave Monica's slim gloved hand a quick pressure about this assured man of the world.

"He's the sort who gets what he wants, always," thought the girl shrewdly. It must be wonderful to go about with a man like that. He patted Monnie's hand as if you were a valuable piece of porcelain.

FOR the first time since her debut, Monnie felt herself neglected. There, watching her with an expression of faint amusement in his heavy-lidded eyes, was her good Samaritan of the night before, Arthur Mackenzie.

"Oh, how do you do! You're seeing some one off?"

He shook his head, enjoying her amazement. "No, I'm sailing. Discovered I had some important business in Spain and thought I might as well make this boat. Such a lovely favorite."

The girl in the silver fox stood their way and Mackenzie put it on her head. Her face included Monica, and she said something in a low tone to her companions. There was a

Beer Tax Reaped From 33 States

9 Millions to U. S.—4½ to States—Beer Soon in Two More

(Copyright, 1933, by Associated Press)

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Coffers of 33 state treasurers contain an additional $4,500,000 collected in taxes since beer was legalized April 7.

This includes complete figures for only three states. Seventeen states made incomplete returns. Seven others gave no figures on the amount from beer taxes. The other 15 states do not yet permit sale of beer.

The federal government collected $6,139,887 in beer revenue during the 23 days of April that the brew was legally flowing. $4,500,000 collected by the states was in addition and brought the total beer taxes to $13,-639,670. To this figure must be added unestimated millions levied by cities and municipalities in license fees on distributors and retailers.

The federal taxes of $5 a barrel netted $3,909,0321 licenses $868,811 and wine $834.

Beer is sold legally in 33 states and the District of Columbia. Under the laws of Maine it becomes legal June 30 and in Nebraska on August 15.

Utah, Minnesota, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Maryland, Colorado, Wyoming and Minnesota, have not levied state taxes on beer. In Arizona the state tax does not go into effect until June 14. The heaviest tax on beer is levied in South Carolina where in addition to the $5 federal tax the state adds $4.85 a barrel or 5 cents a gallon. Or 15 ounce bottles the tax is two cents.

North carolina fixed a tax rate of $3.00 a barrel; Florida of $1.86.

Except for the six states levying no tax, Kentucky with 10 cents a barrel had the lowest rate. The average state excise rate was between $1.00 and $1.25 a barrel.

Like the gold stillness of an afterglow, The Past gleams radiant . . . "They were better days,
With gentleness and grace of long ago, Like children's gladness and its innocent ways.
So grieve we for the haunting times of yore,
While life seemed lovelier and the world more warm,
Thinking that Beauty's sun will shine no more.
Since now we face the darkness and the storm,
Yet all the joy that earth has ever known
Is with us now to make existence sweet;
The nightingale of Keats has never flown,
And Shelley's lark still sings above the wheat
When Eve in Eden wore it in her hair—

A splendid opportunity for Bible training is being presented to the children of our town in the Daily Co-operative Vacation Bible School being held in First Presbyterian church for the next two weeks under the direction of Mrs. Charles Tarpley. Assisting in the reception room were Miss Mamie Twitchell and Mrs. T. R. King, inviting the guests into the dining room were Mrs. Eugene White and Mrs. Kate Holland. Pink radiance roses and sweet peas presided over the dining room decorations; the lace covered beauty table was centered with an unusually attractive antique cluster of vases in silver holders filled with different shades of pink sweet peas and baby breath form, maline streamers in the chosen color note of pink extended from the centre piece to the corner chandeliers holding pink tapers tied with maline and pink roses. est in the profits of the concern I also have a substantial interest in the issues. Which might account for some of the troubles."

There followed a long debate over the wisdom allowing purchase of a private banking firm to all of the members of directors of banks and corporations, Mr. Morgan insisting that it was an essential and ethical policy, Mr. Glass contending that no such office could serve two masters.

Asks Lists of Loans

Mr. Pecora asked for a list of loans by Morgan & Co to officers and directors of incorporated banks. That brought Mr. Davis to his feet. He had given the list to Mr. Pecora, he said. Morgan and Company had no objection to its publication but as bankers they owed their clients a debt of confidence and it must be the responsibility of the committee to decide.

The arguments waxed hot at times between Senator Glass and Mr. Pecora, the former contending the committee had no right to bring out private loans, the latter asserting that the last words threw light on the relationship between Morgan and Company and commercial banking interests.

Mr. Morgan admitted that some of the loans were overdue and unpaid, but others were collateralized. It appeared that there were other lists, such as one of individual depositors, which Mr. Pecora had demanded and to the publication of which Mr. Davis objected.

Mr. Davis repeated his objections. Mr. Pecora stood back strongly.

"This committee has heard frequently," said Mr. Pecora, "and has read frequently the charge and the statement or the allegation that a tremendous power is exercised by the firm of J. P. Morgan and of finance but over the industrial field in this country by the Morgan banks. That charge has been made upon the floor of both houses of this Congress. The information I have asked for and which, unless the committee prevents me, I have every purpose to put of these hearings, is information which in my humble opinion tends to disclose the existence of any such power and the channels through which the power is exercised and the reasons for it."

Keyes Takes Stand

For the first time Mr. Morgan was excused from the stand and Mr. Keyes placed upon it, there to explain about the $21,000,000 loan. He admitted he had heard that Mr. Gilbert was to be a member of the firm sometime before January 2, 1931, but no questioning by Mr. Pecora could shake his assertion that the firm had a right to evaluate its securities holdings upon the remorning of the partnership instead of the end of the calender year.

Surprises Wall Street

NEW YORK.—The condition statement of J. P. Morgan & Co. published today in connection with the Senate inquiry, occasioned surprise in and out of Wall Street community. It showed that the "hours on the edrner" were very much less in commercial loans than had popularly been supposed and that it, like every one else, suffered severe losses during the past three years.

The firm has no stated capital but carries its interest "net worth" representing the money that the partners have in the business after all losses and liabilities and expenses paid. All investments are carried at market and provision for possible losses on outstanding loans is made by writing down the "net worth" as carried on the balance sheet.

This net worth amounted to $118-604,184 at the end of 1929. By the close of last year, however, it had been reduced to $53,134,071, indicating losses of $65,-10.107 in the three years or over 55 per cent.

The firm's holdings of common stocks at the end of last year were only $15,-857,028, contrasted with investments of $254,580,150 in the United States government bonds, $33,857,666 in cash or on deposit in other banks and $7,325,-000 in call loans.

The total of $340,047,102 of deposits reported was slightly smaller than had been generally expected as was the figure of total resources, $404,706,005. The statement indicated a severe drop in deposits between January 2, 1931, when $503,899,015 was reported and January 2, 1932, when $319,403,849 was shown. This interpreted in financial circles as reflecting withdrawal during that period of the deposits of foreign governments, particularly governments of France, Great Britain and Belgium which occurred prior to and for many months after suspension of the gold standard by England.

Inflation Begins With Bond Buying

Secretary Woodin Thinks 3-Billion Limit Is Unnecessary

WASHINGTON—The launching of the Roosevelt inflation program, relied upon to boost prices and wages, and revive business generally, was officially announced late Tuesday by Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin.

But it is credit inflation, not currency inflation, that is being undertaken as the first, if not the only inflationary device that will be resorted to.

Secretary Woodin said the credit inflation program will be formed when the Federal Reserve banks began purchasing in the open market 25 millions worth of government securities. This is also complied with the Thomas inflation rider to the farm relief bill, which provides for such open market purchases of government obligations by the Federal Reserve banks, and, as an alternative, the issue of greenbacks.

The first move on the part of the Federal Reserve banks under the Thomas act," said Mr. Woodin in his statement announcing the inflation, "will be limited to purchases of obligations of the government.

"The limit placed by that amendment is $3 billions. We hope it will not be necessary to purchase all or anything approaching that amount."

The secretary made the announcement as he emerged from the meeting of the cabinet. Asked the reason for inaugurating inflation at this particular time, Mr. Woodin replied:

"To infect something into the market; to keep things moving along."

Arkansas to Help In Forestry Work

State Appoints Forester, Plans Camps on Private Timberland

LITTLE ROCK—The state Forestry Commission, at a meeting at the governor's reception room Tuesday, made preliminary plans to launch a reforestation and fire protection program in co-operation with federal agencies and named Charles A. Gillett forester for the state Agricultural Extension Service, as state forester.

Mr. Gillett, who has served as extension forester about three years, will continue in that capacity for the present, dividing his time between the extension work and supervision of the state forestry program. He is a graduate of Arkansas University and has had several years' experience in forestry work.

The commission authorized Mr. Gillett to obtain contracts with private landowners in areas where it is proposed to establish forestry camps whereby the owners will agree to pay two cents an acre for certain fire protection work. The fund will be matched with federal funds under the Clark-McNary act and will guarantee reforestation of fire protection work after special work has been completed by C. C. C. workers.

WE GIVE EAGLE TRADING STAMPS
HOPE — PRESCOTT — NASHVILLE

IN NEW YORK

BY PAUL HARRISON

NEW YORK.—The Union Club has picked up its fat leather chair and its memories of the New York of 1870, and moving to a new $3,000,000 home on Park Avenue.

Colonels and Commodores, paunchy masters of finance, bristly-mustached diplomats—gentlemen all, scions of centuries-old lines of blue-bloods. They're deserting, with a sigh, the gloomy, high-vaulted Italian palazzo where for 50 years they have dined, and talked, and lounged before the broad windows on Fifth Avenue and Fifty-first Street. And now, for the fifth time in the club's history in 70 years, its members must accustom themselves to new and modern grandeur, and a new view.

The Union is the oldest social club in America, as well as the most socially exclusive. In the old days some of New York's first families were enrolled on its long waiting list, which often contained a thousand names, as soon as they were born. Lately, though, the waiting list has dwindled, but there has been no tonal lowering of its membership. On the roster are names like J. Pierpont Morgan, Ogden L. Mills, Clarence H. Mackay, Nicholas Murray Butler, William H. Woodin. Members of old families like the Cabots, Vanderbilts, Iselins and Biddles are elected as a matter of course. The club's secretary, Charles K. Beekman owns the Social Register.

For Men Only

Sternly masculine, the Union Club has never had a ladies' day. In fact, the only woman ever admitted to its cloistered halls were the widow of ex-presidents, escorted there to view their husband's portraits. Gambling games are frowned upon, although members generally find something on which to place bets—such as the number of raindrops that will pass a window during a given time, or the number of kittens that will be born to the basement cat.

Contrary to conjecture, mere membership is not expensive. Initiation fees are $300; annual dues $200. Cigars and refreshments are sold at wholesale prices, and there is no tipping of employees. The latter, however, divide a subscribed Christmas fund which usually runs between $12,000 and $15,500. Dinners in the club's private dining rooms are likely to be expensive. Union Club terrapin, famed for more than half a century among epicures, costs $2.50 a portion.

Unhappy Memories

Not always has the Union Club pursued its placid way. Dissention has disturbed its studied calm. Tradition has it that the Brook Club was founded by two Union members who were expelled for putting a poached egg on the bald dome of a napping brother.

In 1882 Count Joseph Loubat called Joseph H. Choate a liar during a heated argument. Expelled forthwith, Count Loubat went to court with an array of bitterly eloquent legal talent that won him reinstatement. It was a humiliating precedent that has made explsion a difficult process ever since.

Across the street at St. Patrick's Cathedral, a throng of Irish one day were attending a service for a hero martyred in the Free State fight. Emerging from the church they saw the British flag honoring a famed English visitor, flying from the Union Club. They saw it, and charged. Bricks and stones shattered every downstairs window in the club. The mob forced its way into the lower lounges, there engaged in combat with members. The flag wasn't pulled down, either. But ever since then waggish clubmen have been fond of saying that the Union was "just a stone's throw from the cathedral."

Give your hands something besides new gloves this summer.

Are your hands beautiful? They can be. That is, if you'll take a little time each day to give them the attention they deserve.

If you have hands with dry skin you cannot hope for real beauty until this fault has been corrected. There are many excellent hand creams and lotions on the market today and they correct this dry condition. You should have one jar of oily cream to use at night. When you are ready for bed give your hands a vigorous massage with the cream, draw on soft, clean cotton gloves and allow the cream to penetrate to the pores of your skin all night long.

But the right cream is not enough. Get yourself a bottle of lotion which is considered to help your hands to retain their natural oils. This lotion should be used after you have thoroughly dried your hands each time you wash them.

By all means don't allow your hands to perspire. Nothing is worse than to shake hands with a person who offers you a wet, cold palm. A solution of alum which can be purchased at a drug store may cure the condition. The deodorants you use under your arms are also recommended for palms which perspire.

Next—Home-Made Lotions.

Eclectiat claims people in the city are more intelligent than those in the country. Must be true. A million of them have moved to the country in the last three years.

Maybe we don't understand the artistic point of view, but it looks to us like this: A man builds a $100,000,000 building and pays an artist $25,000 to persuade him to exercise his artistic right to paint anything he pleases in the $100,000,000 building.

Here and There

Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn

FIRST definite plans for the paving of the unsuccessful experimental road between Emmet and Prescott are given us today. We learn that when congress passes the 3 1-3-billion-dollar public works bill Arkansas is to receive 6 3-4 millions, and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads will insist that the first of this money be used to complete our trunk highways.

This is a common-sense requirement.

The completion of gaps in No. 67 through our section of the state this month leaves only the Emmet-Prescott break, and the condition of this stretch is intolerable in wet weather.

As noted in this column recently, highway engineers have already decided that asphalt is impracticable because of the experimental slag base. The road is to be paved with concrete, and will be delayed only until congress has provided the necessary money.

An Associated Press political writer in Little Rock today says the state Democratic convention is hearing plenty of criticism on the action of the state central committee in robbing the people of a choice as to candidates July 18.

Members of the convention, this writer says, may decide that they won't go through with the robbery.

The convention may do one of two things. It may call a special primary, asking the candidates to pay their own expenses; or, it may refuse to take any action at all—which would leave the general election a "free-for-all."

In an overwhelmingly Democratic state, at a time when additional expense is unadvisable, a free-for-all not only guarantees Democratic safeguards, but affords the people a popular choice for supreme court justice, chancellor and congressman.

It is unlikely there will much of a campaign. But the principle of giving the people of a choice as to candidates dates, instead of leaving the selection to the "wise minds" of a machine-controlled convention, is worth fighting for.

Governor Futrell, having failed to force the issue in the state committee, has dropped a broad hint to the convention.

Now it's up to the convention to follow the governor—or the people will hold both of them responsible for a mess July 18.

Editor Drummond of the Stuttgart Arkansaw, while trying to conduct a serious discussion of the beer issue, has dropped the following into the ears of his readers:

"Sir: Your articles on the subject of beer and your request that people write their desires to you have set me to pondering deeply. Maybe you can help me. I can't quite decide whether beer is going to be named in the thing for me.

I once had a cousin who was very, very thin. A friend of his prescribed beer (home brewed) to remedy his condition. He took the prescription and became hale, hearty and plump.

I'm not mentioning any names but I know a man that knows a man who tried to commit suicide via poison with a low state of mind. When his room-mate found him beer worked wonderfully as an anti-dote.

My cousin died last year with gall stones?

What would you suggest?

6 3-4 Millions to Be Available for Through Highways

Federal Public Works Bill Would Give Money to Arkansas

PROVIDE FOR NO. 67

U. S. Bureau to Demand Closing of Emmet-Prescott Gap

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Here to spend the $6,750,000 allotment for road construction contained in the administration's public-works-industry control bill in congress is a question already plaguing the state highway commission, although the measure has not yet been passed or the money made available.

Just as soon as President Roosevelt's $3,300,000,000 program was announced and Arkansas' allotment of $6,750,000 for roads made public, various citizens rushed down to Little Rock or to the homes of the five commissioners to get in "on the ground floor."

Usual Rush Expected

So far, the insistence for roads has been confined to private, personal appeals to the commissioners individually, but they expect as soon as the money is in sight definitely, the usual delegation method of "taking them off their feet" will get into full swing.

The commissioners themselves will discuss the matter only in the most confidential way. The information has ilfted out, however, the commission must be guided largely by the recommendations of the Federal Bureau of Roads, since all of the money is to be made available by the federal government, which already ras a large stake in federal-aid roads in this state. The bureau has insisted during the present emergency construction program that no gaps in the main arteries of travel be left before lateral or secondary highways are constructed.

Must Finish Trunk Lines

There are still many gaps to be filled. Highways 67 and 64, as well as No. 70, are mostly completed but several hundred thousand Dollars will be needed to close their gaps.

Highway 71, across the western part of the tate from north to south, has always been regarded favorably by the federal bureaus of roads and by Western Arkansans that it will receive a concrete surface from Mansfield south to Texarkana is regarded as likely to be realized. No. 71 now is surfaced with concrete from Mansfield north to the Missouri line.

If Senator Wagner's bill—known as the administration's public works-industry controll bill—is passed, the money for road construction will be available July 1.

It will be distributed on the regular federal-aid basis except for one-fourth the allotment, which will be made on a basis of population.

Part of the funds will be made available for expenditure within municipalities, thus allowing for the construction of surfacing on gaps of through highways.

The state must decide in advance the minimum wage scale of laborers, and the use of convict labor on the highways is prohibited.

Negro Stage Show at Saenger Friday

Shover Street Students to Present "The Follies of 1933"

Students of the Shover street school who are presenting "Follies of 1933" at the Saenger theatre for one show only, Friday night at 8:45, have finished their rehearsals are all set to give Hope fans their best production.

This year many new faces appear, headed by two of last years biggest hit-stars, Jeanette Yerger Jr., and Booker T. Murray.

All new songs, gags and dances have been arranged for this years production, and from advance information it should "knock 'em in the aisles." Another feature this year is "The Dancing Al" and the double decks of singing voices.

One show will be given and that at 8:45. The proceeds will be used to set aside for the colored folks, and downstairs only for the whites. Joan Blondell will be featured on the screen attraction with Chester Morris in "Blondie Johnson," the first time at 7:30, and again at 9:30.

Thursday night closes Richard Barthelmess with Sally Eilers in their first co-starring picture, "Central Airport." If it's thrills, action and romance your system needs—here it is.

Texas Legalizes Horse Race Bets

Race Track Gambling, Outlawed Since 1909, Returns

AUSTIN—(AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson Wednesday signed the proposal to legalize the certificate system of wagering on horse racing. The proposal was attached as a rider to the departmental appropriation bill.

The departmental bill was signed without any changes. The bill with the attached rider would not become effective until 90 days after the legislature adjourns because it did not receive a two-thirds majority.

Race track bets had been outlawed in Texas since 1909. Advocates of the return of legalized betting had worked for several years to obtain legislative approval of their proposal.

Raskob and McAdoo Are Brought Into Probe Picture

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The late Calvin Coolidge, former president, was shown Thursday in evidence unearthed by the senate committee investigating J. P. Morgan & Co. to have been a privileged purchaser of 3,000 shares of Standard Brands, a stock marketed through the huge banking firm in the middle of 1929.

Other names on the list included William Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury; Norman Davis, roving ambassador-at-large; John W. Davis, former Democratic presidential candidate; and Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican National Committee.

A Republican View

WASHINGTON.— (AP) — Senator Robinson, Indiana Republican, said in the senate Thursday that the usefulness of Secretary Woodin of the Treasury has ended as the result of testimony linking his name with stock offerings in the J. P. Morgan & Co. inquiry.

To Stop Loopholes

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—In an effort to stop up loopholes in the income tax law, the house ways and means committee Thursday approved an amendment to the industrial recovery bill which would limit deductions from capital losses to one year.

Law to Be Changed

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An investigation was ordered by the house ways and means committee Thursday into the capital gains and loss provisions of the income tax laws with the expressed view of correcting a condition which permitted J. P. Morgan & Co. to avoid payment of incomes taxes the last two years.

The correction would be written into the public works-industrial control bill now before the congress.

The decision to place the amendment into the tax provisions of the administration bill was reached shortly before the house met to debate the measure.

Chairman Doughton, of the ways and means committee, appointed a subcommittee of Rogers, of Arkansas, Hanson, of Kentucky; and Treadway, of Massachusetts, to conduct the investigation and draft the amendment.

Ragon said:

"Immediate steps will be taken to prevent the recurrence of such conditions which permitted the Morgan partners to avoid the payment of income taxes."

Raskob and McAdoo

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The gigantic sweep of the business directed by J. P. Morgan & Co. was further portrayed by evidence in the senate investigation Thursday that it sold more than a billion dollars in securities to the public since World war days.

Of these, some 2 billions have been retired.

The statement of Morgan operations was placed in the record by George Whitney, youthful-appearing Morgan partner.

A letter from John J. Rasbok thanking the Morgan company for "kindly remembering me" in selling him 2,000 shares of Alleghany corporation stock below the market price, was placed before the committee.

Senator McAdoo, a member of the investigating committee, who was first listed as a recipient of some of the stock, denied that he was a preferred Morgan client, issuing a formal statement to that effect.

Australian Dogs Shod

BRISBANE, Australia—(AP)—Most of the dogs in the cattle country of north Australia are wearing chamois leather shoes.

The blistering heat of this summer has been so unbearable that the dogs have been unable to run over the baked earth and herding cattle has been difficult without the aid of these trained canines.

Somebody thought of shoes and now almost all the dogs have their feet encased.

Demand Leonard Pay Back $52,755

Comptroller's Action Draws Compromise Offer From Norwood

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — State Comptroller Griffin Smith called upon State Treasurer Roy V. Leonard Thursday to substitute cash immediately for the $52,755.72 in highway warrants for less than $100 which he cashed eight days ago, and to "make good without delay" $13,499.79 in alleged unpaid checks carried on his books as cash items.

The comptroller also made public letter to the Fidelity & Casualty Co., surety on Leonard's official bond, notifying it of his action.

The demand for substitution of the warrants with cash was made by Comptroller Smith, he said, under Chancellor Frank H. Dodge's ruling Wednesday that the cashing of warrants under $100 "was an illegal act."

Several of the unpaid checks bear the W. Robinson & Co. John F. Cox Drug Co., J. C. Penney Co., L. C. Burr & Co., Rephan's New York Store, Citizens National Bank, Ward & Son, druggists, John S. Gibson Drug Co.

Norwood Would Compromise

LITTLE ROCK— (AP)—An offer for a compromise decree to allow the state refunding board to approve valid highway warrants for less than $100 and let them be paid by the state treasurer, was made Thursday by Attorney General Jack Norwood to State Comptroller Griffin Smith.

Smith said he would have to consult the other members of the board, who are Governor Futrell and Treasurer Leonard, before rendering a decision. Norwood said if the compromise were accepted he would not appeal from the chancery court decision.

Three-Point-Two Sold in Hope for 25 Cents Bottle

No Arrests Up to Thursday Noon After ½ Week's Business

ALDERMEN EVASIVE

One Asks "What'll We Do After Congress Legalized It?"

The new 3.2 per cent beer is being sold openly in Hope. Although unauthorized by any licensing act of the city council wholesale shipments are being delivered here and the brew is retailing at 25 cents a bottle—an advance of 10 cents over the posted price in Louisiana.

Local selling began this week according to information reaching the Star. The beer is being dispensed in two or possibly three local taverns, with reports current that these are not disturbed the while but will be selling it within a few days.

No Arrests Made

No arrests had been made up to Thursday noon, although sales were reported, to have been heavy for the two days.

Apparently there was no prospect of a test case. Members of the city council said they had heard nothing about beer-selling, but "knew nothing about it officially."

The attitude of the council seems determined. One member asked if "anybody thought America was going to go to pieces over a little beer?" The council, when congress legalized it, declared that the sale of beer was lawful and legal!"

On the other hand, an alderman doubted whether the council would be forced into the dubious position of licensing beer sales at a time when state law appears to frown on the practice.

Beer in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Municipal Judge Harper E. Harb Thursday dismissed a criminal case against Charley Johnson, arrested Wednesday night and charged with the transportation of 3.2 per cent beer.

Judge Harb held that the beverage is not intoxicating, and ordered officers to return two cases that had been seized at the time of Johnson's arrest.

Judge Harb said:

"There are not enough officers in Pulaski county to prevent the sale of beer, and I believe that the city council should pass a licensing ordinance and derive revenue from its sale."

Ku Klux Flogging Is Reported Here

Chicken Thieves Taken From Officers by Hooded Band of 25 or 30

The Ku Klux Klan apparently has been revived in this county.

Several persons in the Ozan vicinity, northern Hempstead county, have been whipped recently by hooded thieves. Farming implements, chickens and turkeys have been disappearing for weeks.

Isiah Scroggins and Bendine Davis, negroes, were arrested this week and charged with petit larceny. In a justice court at Ozan the two negroes pleaded guilty. They were fined $25 each and given 30 days in the county jail.

Bob Carrigan, constable of Ozan township, started to Washington with the negroes early last night. Within three miles of the county seat a band of 25 or 30 men disguised and wearing Ku Klux Klan regalia, met him and took the negroes from his car. The band ordered Carrigan to move on, which he did.

The negroes were then taken to an unfrequented road a mile away and were whipped and turned loose. It is said the negroes confessed to a long list of thefts, which involved several white men of Ozan and vicinity as associates. The whipped negroes have disappeared.

Ten or 12 years ago there was a strong band of the Ku Klux in this county, and it is thought some of them took part in the whipping and applied the old regalia used by the order. Constable Carrigan said he could not identify any of the band.

Revival Subject Is Postponed Wednesday

Tax Lands to Be Forfeited June 12

4-Year Redemption Law Suspended—Have 2 Years Only

Property owners who failed to pay taxes in 1931 for 1930 have only until June 12 to redeem their land before it is forfeited to the state permanently.

The two-year redemption period of the old law still stands. Act 280 would have lengthened the redemption period to four years—but operation of the act has been suspended by a referendum petition until the general election in 1934.

County Clerk Arthur Anderson made this announcement from Washington Thursday following receipt of a letter from George W. Neal, commissioner of state lands. Commissioner Neal said in his letter:

"The petition ordering a referendum on Act 280, of the acts of 1933, which was filed in the secretary of state's office May 12, renders that act inoperative until approved by a majority of the electors at the general election in 1934.

"Proper forms for certifying the delinquent land lists for 1930, which are due in this office immediately after June 13 of this year, will be mailed to you within the next few days."

The following Friday night, June 2, the club is staging a program at the school building in Blevins.

State Convention Heeding Criticism

May Refuse to Nominate, Leaving the Election Free-for-All

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The possibility that the state Democratic convention when it meets here June 20 may refuse to nominate candidates for chief justice of the supreme court, fifth district congressman and two chancery judgeships, is being discussed in political circles here.

Governor Futrell's statement that he favored primaries to select the nominees if the candidates were willing to pay the expenses of the primary elections, has given impetus to the move to have the convention decline to nominate.

His statement was prompted by widespread criticism in the press of the state committee for its action and the action of the state Democratic central committee in calling the 1932 convention delegates back into session to make the nominations, instead of calling a primary.

At least two members of the state central committee who voted for the convention plan of nominating have privately expressed the hope the convention would refuse to nominate.

The possibility of nominations has opened up a wide field of discussion on what the result would be.

Should the convention meet on June 20, less than a month before the July 18 prohibition referendum when the governor plans to call a special session to elect a chief justice, two chancery judges and a successor to Congressman Heartsill Ragon if the latter resigns next month, there would be held time for the state committee to meet again and call a primary. The new run-off primary law becomes effective June 9 and a run-off primary would be necessary unless the leading candidates received a majority of all votes cast for each office.

Should the convention refuse to nominate, what is regarded as the most likelt course would be to leave the special election open to all candidates to file by petition—a plan proposed to the state committee but rejected in favor of the convention plan.

Congressman Ragon has announced it is his present intention to resign his seat in the house early in June to assume the federal judgeship of the western district of Arkansas, to which he recently was appointed by President Roosevelt.

The other three offices to be voted on July 18—chief justice and chancellors of the sixth and twelfth districts—are filled temporarily by appointments of Governor Futrell.

Hope Boys' Band Is Pledged Support

Semi-Monthly Concerts Assured City for Summer Months

Hope is to have band concerts every other Saturday afternoon this summer, by the Hope Boys band, supported by the business community, according to plans of the Kiwanis Club, which is sponsoring the movement.

Several new boys will be given instruction.

This is the first time Hope has supported a band for two years. A fund was left from the previous band, a part of which was used Thursday morning to purchase a bass horn, which will be added to the equipment of the band.

Ben Laney, Jr., of Arkadelphia, well known Arkansas band leader; has been giving lessons to about 12 Hope boys for the past several months. The new band may have as many as 35 pieces. Ashford was director of the Pine Bluff band for several years. He conducts several bands in Southwest, Arkansas, and is well known locally. Several former students are now living in Hope. Ashford has two sons playing in leading New York bands. "Bo" Ashford plays the trumpet in Paul Whiteman's band, and other sons have been playing the trumphet in the orchestra in Keith's Orpheum theater, New York, for several years.

A Kiwanis committee will complete calling on Hope business firms for monthly assessments throughout the summer to finance the band, on Friday. Those who already have contributed are:

Hope Star, Hope Furniture Co., Geo. W. Robison & Co., John F. Cox Drug Co., J. C. Penney Co., L. C. Burr & Co., Rephan's New York Store, Citizens National Bank, Ward & Son, druggists, John S. Gibson Drug Co.

Gorham & Gosnell, Patterson's Department Store, Ritchie Grocer Co., Saenger Theatre, Piggly Wiggly Store, A. & P. Grocery, Hollaman Coca-Cola Co., Roy Anderson & Co., City Bakery and Moreland's Drugstore.

J. W. Cantley Is to Be Graduated by W. & L.

LEXINGTON, Ky.—J. W. Cantley, son of Mrs. Kate Betts Cantley, 505 East Second street, Hope, Ark., is a candidate for a bachelor of arts degree at Washington and Lee university here.

Sir Josiah Stamp, eminent British economist and financier, will deliver the commencement address June 6. This is the semi-centennial commencement of the university.
